Prom is just around the corner as we all know and there are just a few things we want to suggest to our student body. We have been around the school and noticed some other things that we would like to touch base on. We also would like you to know that we are not trying to offend anyone. What we say is nothing more than our opinion. We advise you not to take it personally.

Dresses:

Of course every girl on prom night wants to stand out from all the other girls and wants every eye to be on her. What kind of girl doesn't want that? What happens if another girl has the exact same dress as you? Our advice is to rock it harder. If you feel like you're prettier than your "twin" then show everyone that it looks better on you. Don't stress over having the same dress. Yes, we understand that it will suck to have the same attire on, but if you have to step your game up then feel free to do so. Everyone will be beautiful on that night we're sure, but sometimes you have to fight for the spotlight.

Another thing with dresses is that we wouldn't like to see all of what you got in your very revealing dress. Be sure to buy your dress to where you can still feel pretty, but modest. If you don't want anyone to talk about you in a bad way then go ahead and choose a nice dress, because everyone knows how people can talk.

After Parties:

After parties are kind of touchy subjects with most people. A lot of things can happen and will happen at these parties. We walk around the hallways and hear everyone talk about who is going where and what is going to happen. We aren't telling you not to go by any means, but if you know of something that isn't very good is going to happen at a certain party, then just be smart about your decisions. Everyone knows right from wrong, so just make a wise decision about everything you do that night.

For the Guys: (By Neel Patel)

Prom is nothing more than a way for girls to get you to spend money on them. Don't waste your time. The girl only wants to date you so you will take her to the prom.

Everyone knows that the week after prom is the big breakup week, as girls dump their boyfriends who they only dated so they could attend the prom.

Save some money and date an older chick that is already out of school and has no desire to waste your time or money on this glorified school dance.
