

Don't Eat Yellow Snow

Homecoming is finally here. It is the talk of Franklin. As people prepare for this once a year event, many get caught up in all the drama. I too am excited about the festivities, but I have some suggestions that are sure to make this homecoming a better event for everyone.

Drama: Just because homecoming is the big thing for the year, does not mean that you have to go psycho about the float not being the prettiest, one piece of hair falling out of place because you ran out of hair spray, or because we are not playing our absolute best on the field Friday night. All I hear is drama, drama, and a little bit more drama. I promise it will be okay. The float will be perfect, your hair will be beautiful as always, and the boys will do the best to their ability. Homecoming to me is exciting, but way over-rated. Some people prepare for months in advanced for this thing. It is not that serious.

The Girls Homecoming Court: I like everyone that is on the 2009 girls' homecoming court. I think that we have a well-rounded bunch of girls. There is the captain of the cheerleading squad, Caitlin Thompson, the basketball star, Laci Emory, the drum major with a sense of style, Brooke Jackson, the awesome softball sensation, Blake Alford, the cheerleader who is hilarious, McKenzie Benefield, and the short, cute tennis player, Hannah Burson. I think we all get along and all have been friends since our younger years. I am honored to be on the homecoming court with such beautiful girls. My suggestion to them is to have fun. It is our senior year, and our time to shine. It is a privilege to just be on the court, and to whoever wins queen, you have earned it. Do not worry if your dress does not fit just right or your hair will not stay in place, just smile and be glad you were chosen by your peers. Homecoming will not go over perfectly, but make it as good as you want it to be. It will be much easier that way.

The Boys Homecoming Court: The boys are never as important as the girls when it comes to homecoming and everyone knows it, but the boys this year are phenomenal I think. Santez Emory, Jeremiah Hill, Kevin Welch, Adam Cannon, Bryan Dunson, and Brandon Buchanan are very fine choices for the homecoming court. They are all very nice, athletic, and well liked by Heard High students. To all the boys, I know that you think homecoming is lame and it is nothing to get excited about, but try to be at least a little bit enthused. Everyone knows that you do not care about anything but the game, but do it for the girls. It will make us feel better and that is all that matters, right? For the football players, do your best and play as hard as you can. I know you will make us proud.
